

English Speech Scholarship

An outstanding winner of Public Speaking classes of the Speech Festival has the opportunity to receive a scholarship to participate in the International Public Speaking Competition (IPSC) and language art workshops held in London. His / Her flight ticket, boarding charges, participation fees, and pre-competition training are sponsored by local companies / organisations and the Association.

The IPSC is part of a five-day programme of events, including debating and performance workshops, educational and cultural excursions, and a two-day public speaking competition. It brings the best young speakers aged 16 to 20 from all over the world for a week of cultural exchange and public speaking contests. More than 50 delegates who are champions of their respective countries or territories attend the contest.

In May 2019, Leung Yue-yi Emily, the selected winner of Public Speaking Solo class of the 70th Speech Festival, attended the IPSC as a representative of Hong Kong and gained wonderful experience in the event.

The scholarship aims to nurture the young students of Hong Kong and to broaden their horizon on a global scale. Every year towards the end of the Speech Festival, the Association invites winners who are recommended by the adjudicators to an audition and interview. The selected best speaker will receive training before going to London.
